II. Overview of Undergraduate Studies

General education coursework is spread across the areas of composition, mathematics, humanities, social and behavioral sciences, and biological and physical sciences. In addition to general education requirements, the Writing across the Curriculum initiative requires that written assignments make up at least one quarter of the final grade for each course.

Courses emphasize high-quality instruction, small class size, and personal attention by an accomplished faculty of noted researchers, published authors, journal editors, and consultants. In addition to close faculty-student relationships, the university provides resources outside the classroom to help NSU undergraduates achieve their academic goals.

Admission Procedures and Requirements

Application Deadlines

Prospective undergraduate students may apply for admission and be accepted to NSU on a rolling basis throughout the entire year. However, students applying for admission to the Bachelor of Science in Nursing—Entry-Level Program must submit their application no later than April 1 to be considered for admission for the August class and October 1 to be considered for the January class. However, for all programs, students should apply early to ensure that their application receives prompt consideration.

For more information on a specific program’s application deadline or how to apply for priority consideration, students should contact an admissions counselor (see General Admission Information) or refer to www.nova.edu/admissions.

Required Documentation

To apply for admission to Nova Southeastern University, all prospective students must submit a completed application which will include a nonrefundable, $50 application fee, online at www.nova.edu/nursing. Transcripts and any additional documentation required by their program must be submitted to Enrollment Processing Services (EPS) (see General Admission Information for the address).

Students are provisionally admitted to an NSU undergraduate degree-seeking program based on a review of unofficial transcripts and/or fulfillment of program-specific admission requirements. However, full admission is contingent on receipt of final, official documents and fulfillment of program-specific admission requirements.

Final, official transcripts must show all courses completed, grades posted, and graduation dates (if applicable). The school seal must be imprinted or embossed on the transcript, which should be forwarded in a sealed envelope, directly from the institution, in order to be considered an official transcript. Photocopies and facsimiles will not be accepted as final, official transcripts. A final, official transcript is required for each college, university, or professional school attended, whether or not credit was granted and even though transfer credit from one college may appear on another college’s transcript. Freshman applicants and applicants without at least 12 transferrable credits must provide official high school transcripts. Students must have attended a regionally accredited institution. Students presenting transcripts from non regionally accredited schools may petition to the Director of Undergraduate Admissions to have their applications and transcripts reviewed.

If final, official documents and/or program-specific admission requirements are not received the student will not be eligible for admission. Financial aid will not be disbursed until the student has been fully admitted as a degree-seeking student and all admission requirements have been satisfied and approved by the appropriate admission office and the student’s program office.

An admissions committee made up of faculty members and admissions representatives reviews applications and makes a determination of admittance or non-admittance. Factors affecting the committee’s decision include high school grade point average (GPA), Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or American College Test (ACT) scores, previous college performance, recommendations, interviews, and student essays.

For applicants who attended or are graduates of foreign institutions, all coursework from the foreign institution must be evaluated for U.S. institutional equivalence. For more information, see the International Students and Foreign Credentials section in Special Circumstances.

For information on additional documentation required for admittance into specific majors or programs, students should review the following individual program requirements.
Bachelor of Health Science—Online Degree Completion, Bachelor of Science in Cardiovascular Sonography, and Bachelor of Science Medical Sonography Program

Prospective B.H.Sc. Online, B.S. Cardiovascular Sonography, and Medical Sonography Programs students are selected by the Department of Health Science committee on admissions through consideration of the overall qualities of the applicant.

The B.S.— Cardiovascular Sonography and Medical Sonography Programs will admit individuals with diverse education, work, and life experiences who have demonstrated capacity to pursue the course of study in Cardiovascular or Medical Sonography. Upon review of the completed application file, candidates who meet the requirements will be selected and invited for an interview.

Areas of consideration for both programs include application content, academic record, prior health care experience, letters of evaluation, and personal motivation.

Many criteria, in addition to academic credentials, play a role in the admission process for the B.H.Sc. Online, Cardiovascular and Medical Sonography programs. While the program allows the student to demonstrate academic capability, it does not assure admission to any professional school. Admission to the B.H.Sc. Online, Cardiovascular and Medical Sonography programs will not guarantee admission to any other program of Nova Southeastern University.

Upon receipt of the completed application, fees, credentials, and transcripts, the admissions officers and the College of Health Care Sciences and the College of Nursing will review all material for evidence of the proper education, training, and background to enter the B.H.Sc. Online, Cardiovascular and Medical Sonography programs.

In addition to the documents described in the Required Documentation section, students applying for entry to the B.H.Sc.—online degree completion program must submit evidence of the following:

- Completion prior to matriculation of three semester hours (or equivalent) of college-level written composition from a regionally accredited college or university with a minimum grade of C (GPA of 2.0 on a 4.0 scale). (Effective January 1, 2006)
- An associate’s degree in a field of health from a regionally accredited college or university with a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.6 on a 4.0 grading scale OR a diploma or certificate of completion in a field of health care
- Documented evidence demonstrating education or experience in the health care field within the past five years.
- All applicants must show evidence of computer skills through course work or self-study prior to the end of the first term. Students may obtain instruction through the NSU Student Microcomputer Laboratory or other training facilities.
- Two letters of evaluation from individuals other than relatives such as academic advisors, professors, or clinical or nonclinical supervisors, or a community associates
- Graduates from programs other than those from regionally accredited colleges or universities must submit a student prepared learning portfolio requesting Assessment of Prior Experiences for Academic Credit.
- Copies of national and or state professional certification, licensure or registration, if applicable.

Non-Degree-Seeking Students
A non-degree-seeking student is one who wishes to take undergraduate coursework, but does not intend to pursue a degree at the time of application.
Bachelor of Health Science—Online Degree Completion Program

The non-degree-seeking student must meet the following admission requirements in order to take classes in the B.H.Sc.—Online Program:

- Completion prior to matriculation of three semester hours (or equivalent) of college-level written composition from a regionally accredited college or university with a minimum grade of C (GPA of 2.0 on a 4.0 scale). (Effective January 1, 2006)
- An associate’s degree in a field of health from a regionally accredited college or university with a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.6 on a 4.0 grading scale
  OR
  A diploma or certificate of completion in a field of health care with a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.6 on a 4.0 grading scale

Due to the limited number of seats available in the program, preference for admission and registration will be given to degree-seeking students. Non-degree-seeking students are limited to taking a maximum of nine semester hours of B.H.Sc. coursework. Enrollment in these courses does not guarantee acceptance into the B.H.Sc. degree program or any other Nova Southeastern University program.

If after taking classes in the B.H.Sc. program a non-degree-seeking student decides to pursue the B.H.Sc. degree, the student must resubmit an application to the program to be a degree-seeking student and must meet all the admission requirements for the B.H.Sc. degree program.

A non-degree-seeking student who, after taking classes in the B.H.Sc. program, decides to apply to be a degree seeking student may request a transfer of credits taken as a non-degree-seeking student in accordance with the transfer policy of the B.H.Sc. program. All applicants must show evidence of computer skills through coursework or self-study prior to the end of the first term. Students may obtain instruction through the NSU Student Microcomputer Laboratory or other training facilities.

Applications are accepted year round for R.N. to B.S.N. entering classes.

In addition to the documents described in the Required Documentation section, students applying for entry to the Bachelor of Science in Nursing—R.N. to M.S.N. Track must submit evidence of the following:
Initial admission criteria would be the current admission requirements for the RN to BSN degree:

• Applicants must have an overall GPA of 2.6 or higher on a 4.0 scale.

• The student will complete three terms of B.S.N. coursework. At the end of three terms, the student must meet the 3.0 or higher GPA admission requirement for the M.S.N. The 3.0 GPA will be calculated from the B.S.N. courses completed at NSU. Students enrolled in the R.N. to M.S.N. program who do not meet the 3.0 GPA requirements in the third term will be moved to the R.N. to B.S.N. program and complete the two additional terms for the B.S.N. All R.N. to M.S.N. students will be required to meet with the program director at the end of the first semester to complete an assessment of their academic status and determine eligibility for progression to either the R.N. to M.S.N. program or the R.N. to B.S.N. program.
• Applicants must submit two letters of recommendation from individuals other than relatives: one from academic instructor, professor, or academic advisor and one from a community associate.

current high-school transcript or GED equivalent); including proof of graduation and SAT or ACT scores, within the first 90 days of the first day of the semester.

In addition to the documents described in the Required Documentation section, transfer applicants must submit official, final high school and college transcripts from all previous schools attended, whether or not credit was awarded. If, at the time of application, students have any courses in progress at another institution, a final, official transcript must be submitted. The high school transcript may be omitted for students who have at least 12 transferrable credits from a regionally accredited institution.

Professional and Liberal Studies (PALS) Program (day) students, on receiving notification of acceptance, should promptly inform the Office of Undergraduate Admissions in writing of their intention to enroll and send a $200 deposit to be credited toward tuition. To receive a refund of tuition deposits, students must rescind their acceptance in writing by May 1 for August (fall) admission, by September 1 for January (winter) admission, and by January 1 for May (spring/summer) admission.

Career Development Program

In addition to the documents described in the Required Documentation section, all applicants to the Career Development Program must submit proof of high school graduation (or GED equivalent) if they have not previously attended a college-level institution. Transfer students must submit official, final high school and college transcripts from all previous schools attended, whether or not credit was awarded. Home-schooled applicants should provide SAT or ACT scores and a passing GED score to demonstrate high-school equivalence. As with all candidates for admission, each applicant is considered on his or her individual merits and potential for academic success at NSU. Acceptance is not based on any one criterion, and in appropriate cases, requirements for documentation may vary or be modified.

International Students and Foreign Credentials

International students applying to NSU's main campus, or to any of the university's Florida Student Educational Centers, are required to obtain a student (F-1) visa or an exchange visitor (J-1) visa. Students are not permitted to study in the United States on a visitor (B-2) visa.

To receive a refund of tuition deposits, international students must rescind their acceptance, in writing, by May 1 for August (fall) admission, by September 1 for January (winter) admission, and by January 1 for May (spring/summer) admission.

Non-Degree-Seeking Students

A non-degree-seeking student is one who wishes to take undergraduate coursework, but does not intend to pursue a degree at the time of application.

College of Health Care Sciences

Bachelor of Health Science—Online Program

The non-degree-seeking student must meet the following admission requirements in order to take classes in the B.H.Sc.—Online Program:

- Completion prior to matriculation of three semester hours (or equivalent) of college-level written composition from a regionally accredited college or university with a minimum grade of C (GPA of 2.0 on a 4.0 scale). (Effective January 1, 2006)
- An associate’s degree in a field of health from a regionally accredited college or university with a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.5 on a 4.0 grading scale
  OR
  A diploma or certificate of completion in a field of health care.

Due to the limited number of seats available in the program, preference for admission and registration will be given to degree-seeking students. Non-degree-seeking students are limited to taking a maximum of nine semester hours of B.H.Sc. coursework. Enrollment in these courses does not guarantee acceptance into the B.H.Sc. degree program or any other Nova Southeastern University program.

If after taking classes in the B.H.Sc. program a non-degree-seeking student decides to pursue the B.H.Sc. degree, the student must resubmit an application to the program to be a degree-seeking student and must meet all the admission requirements for the B.H.Sc. degree program.

A non-degree-seeking student who, after taking classes in the B.H.Sc. program, decides to apply to be a degree seeking student may request a transfer of credits taken as a non-degree-seeking student in accordance with the transfer policy of the B.H.Sc. program. All applicants must show evidence of computer skills through coursework or self-study prior to the end of the first term. Students may obtain instruction through the NSU Student Microcomputer Laboratory or other training facilities.

Special Students

Special (non-degree seeking) students may take up to 24 credit hours or enroll in a specialty program without being admitted to a degree program. The 24-credit limit does not apply to students who have already earned a baccalaureate degree. Special students should indicate their status on their application form and submit it with the application fee and a transcript from the last college attended. Students who have never attended college must submit a transcript indicating completion of high school or GED equivalent. Once the admissions process is complete, students may register for courses. Special students are not eligible for a degree unless they follow the regular admissions procedures for degree-seeking students. Additionally, special students are not eligible for financial aid.

Non-degree seeing students seeking a paralegal certificate must hold a baccalaureate degree. Students in this and other certificate programs may be eligible for financial aid. Contact an admissions counselor for details.

Resident Aliens

Applicants who are resident aliens must provide proof of resident alien status at the time of application.

Second Bachelor's Degree

Individuals, who already hold a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution, including NSU, may earn a second bachelor's degree from NSU by completing a minimum of 30 additional credits toward the second degree. At least 50 percent of the major must be taken at NSU.

Suspensions

Applicants who are currently under suspension or who have been suspended or dismissed from another postsecondary institution are not eligible for admission to Nova Southeastern University. Applicants may appeal this policy and request a waiver by the admissions committee. That waiver may be granted only after a review of additional information. Students who are currently under suspension or who have been suspended or dismissed from NSU should refer to the Academic Requirements and Progress section in Academic Resources and Procedures for policy information.
Concurrent Enrollment

Students enrolled at NSU are not generally permitted to be enrolled at other institutions at the same time. Only under unusual circumstances will permission for concurrent enrollment be granted. See the Enrollment at Other Universities section in Academic Resources and Procedures for policies and requirements.

Delayed Enrollment and Reapplication for Admission

Students who apply for admission but do not complete the admissions process, or are admitted but never attended NSU, may reactivate their applications within a period of 12 months after the intended semester of enrollment. For example, a student admitted for fall semester must enroll no later than the following fall semester. After the 12 month deadline, students must reapply for admission and a new application fee will be assessed. Students who wish to apply for readmission must clear all financial and academic holds from their record before a readmission application is processed.

VI. Transfer Credits

NSU welcomes undergraduate students who have earned college credits at other regionally accredited colleges and universities. Students interested in transferring to NSU should contact an admissions counselor to discuss how prior college credits can be applied toward an NSU degree. Community college students should contact an admissions counselor as early as possible in their college career in order to choose associate’s degree coursework that will be appropriate for transfer into their intended NSU bachelor's degree program.

Transfer credit evaluation will be completed by the office of Transfer Evaluation Services upon the receipt of official transcripts. Applicable credit will be transferred based on all final official transcripts received. Transfer students must provide final official transcripts from all previously attended colleges for transfer credit evaluation. Students will be advised to take courses based on the official evaluation in their file.

Official transcripts from all colleges or universities previously attended should be sent directly to:

Nova Southeastern University
Enrollment Processing Services
Attn: Undergraduate Admissions (UGA) Please include major if known
P.O. Box 299000
Ft. Lauderdale, Florida 33329-9905

NSU may transfer a maximum of 90 eligible semester credits toward a bachelor's degree, including credit for CLEP, proficiency exams, and prior experiential learning. Remaining credits and at least 50 percent of credits in the student’s major, minor, and/or certificate areas must be earned at NSU in regular academic offerings. See the Academic Requirements and Progress section
Transferring NSU Credits to Other Institutions

Credits earned at NSU are eligible for transfer to programs at other institutions. Students should contact the institution of intended transfer for their policies related to accepting transfer credit.

Assessment of Prior Experiences for Academic Credit
NSU undergraduates may convert prior professional, military, and other life experiences into academic credit through three different mechanisms. All requests for prior learning credit must be made prior to completion of 24 credits. Credits earned through prior learning will be noted on transcripts.

1. General and Subject Testing
Students may meet certain general education, major, and elective requirements in a variety of areas through objective tests in which they demonstrate specific subject knowledge. These tests include the College Board's College-Level Examination Program (CLEP), Digital Systems Substitution Test (DSST) (formerly known as DANTES), and New York University proficiency exams. Students who plan to take these exams as prerequisites for other courses must successfully complete the exams before registering for more advanced coursework. Students who enroll in courses that require TECH 1110 (Technology in the Information Age) as a prerequisite, may satisfy the prerequisite by taking an exam that tests their computer knowledge. Students must contact their academic advisor before taking any exams. See the Office of Academic Services (OAS) section in Academic Resources and Procedures for more information about testing services.

2. Full Portfolios (for course challenges)
Students who intend to challenge a specific college-level course must submit a full portfolio that presents their knowledge of the course topic. Full portfolios are evaluated by an appropriate faculty member. Students may earn a maximum of 25 percent of their credits through the full portfolio process. Full portfolios include course syllabi and descriptions; student resumes and autobiographies; written skill inventories that compare learning experiences with equivalent course subject matter; and other relevant documents, including certificates, training documents, and verification of employment. Students interested in submitting a full portfolio for academic credit should work directly with the Office of Transfer Evaluation Services.

3. Standard Grants
NSU has established a series of standard college credit grants for common, documented learning experiences. These experiences include certain training courses; military experiences; licenses; and health care industry training experiences, such as EMT and paramedic training, and nursing education in training hospitals. Specific documentation is required for each standard grant. The number of credits awarded depends on the major program's transfer policies.
